PREFACE

Edison Denisov (1929-1996) is one of the main representatives of twentieth-century Russian music. After studying mathematics in his native city of Tomsk (Siberia), when he seemed headed for a brilliant scientific career, he decided on a completely different path and joined the composition class at the Moscow Conservatory. The principles of the exact sciences did not remain without influence on Denisov's production, however, and he himself later explained that "music is an art of logical thinking".

The composer went down in music history with a work that is brilliant in every way - the cantata The Sun of the Incas. Although the world premiere in Russia caused a major scandal, it became the first work by this composer that was performed in the West – first of all in 1965 in Darmstadt, where it was presented as a pioneering work of Soviet serialism. During the same year, Pierre Boulez conducted the premiere of The Sun of the Incas in Paris. Starting then, Denisov's musical path had its brighter and darker sides. Whilst his Russian homeland repudiated one of its most promising composers, his international career in the West started to take off. Thus Denisov, long recognised in the West, was persecuted in the Soviet Union until the mid-1980s, and publications, recordings and official performances of his works were prohibited.

As a leading figure of the Soviet avant-garde of the 1960s, he had to put up with the most vehement attacks from those in power. Rebellious, incorruptible, conscientious and persevering, he remained true to himself through all animosities and adversities. He possessed a rare, almost mystical power that distinguished him from many others.

Often attacked in his homeland as 'too western', Denisov is nonetheless deeply bound to the Russian tradition and folk culture – especially due to his composition studies with Visarion Shebalin, a pupil of Nikolai Miaskovsky, who was in turn a pupil of Rimski-Korsakov and Glazunov. As a young man, Denisov travelled to the Altai Mountains in Siberia in order to record original peasants' songs. In his works one can find traces of this music wherever several melodic lines are woven together exactly in the same way as in the heterophony of Russian songs. Other works of Denisov bear witness to this in still more impressive ways: Laments, for example, that precisely reproduce the ancient Russian burial ritual or The History of the Life and Death of Our Lord Jesus Christ, the first passion setting in the Russian language in music history.

As an undisputed leader with rare charisma, Denisov gathered numerous personalities around him, contributing to a rapprochement between musicians from different countries. In this sense, he was an early 'European'. Denisov, an ardent defendant of contemporary Russian music, worked his whole life in behalf of its dissemination in the West. He cultivated numerous professional and personal contacts – amongst others, with Henri Dutilleux, Iannis Xenakis, Pierre Boulez, Paul Méfano, Francis Miroglio, Nadia Boulanger, Claude Ballif,

Vinko Globokar, Gilbert Amy, Jean-Claude Eloy and François Bernard Mâche in France, but also with Henri Pousseur, Luigi Nono, Luciano Berio, Luigi Dallapiccola, Luis de Pablo, Karlheinz Stockhausen, Helmut Lachenmann, George Crumb, Heinz Holliger, György Ligeti, Kazimierz Serocki and Zygmunt Krauze – not to mention many interpreters and diverse organisers.

Collaboration with Russian and western musicians, faithful companions in the search for bold innovations – including the flutist Aurèle Nicolet, the oboist Heinz Holliger, the clarinetist Eduard Brunner, the trombonist Anatoli Skobelev, the cellist Natalia Gutman, the saxophonists Jean-Marie Londeix and Claude Delangle – made it possible for Denisov to create virtuoso works containing the newest instrumental techniques.

In addition to his compositional projects, he dedicated himself to a wide range of pedagogical activities. Denisov taught orchestration and composition at the Moscow Conservatory for almost forty years (1959-1996), and he is the only composer of his generation who founded a compositional school of his own in Russia – comparable with that of Olivier Messiaen in France.

The works of this master, comprising over 140 compositions, cover a wide range of genres: instrumental works and vocal compositions, including three operas, a ballet, two symphonies for large orchestra, two oratorios, a Requiem, 15 solo concertos and an impressive number of chamber works. In addition, there are over 30 stage works and over 60 film scores, which cannot be shown in their entirety in the present catalogue. A remarkable feature is the coexistence of extremely refined orchestrated works and 'classically' conceived compositions such as symphonies, concertos, sonatas, etc.

His avant-garde style, innovative and provocative during the 1960s, gradually became more moderate later on, allowing room for a refined, sensitive lyricism. In his last works – the Second Chamber Symphony and the Symphony No. 2 for large orchestra – we find a late style marked by shockingly expressionistic outbursts.

Denisov's stylistic development reveals a high degree of constancy, without interruptions or detours, but always evolutionary. During the 1960s he completely dedicated himself to chamber music in his search for authenticity. In the early 1970s he found his own unmistakable style with Picture for large orchestra.

Denisov's creative credo is contained in one of his favourite thoughts: „Beauty is one of the essential concepts in art“. In addition to this, his aesthetic is defined by three more constants: light, shadow and mystery. These three concepts are repeatedly found both in his statements and in the symbolism of his works. At the centre there stands the monogram based on his Christian name and surname – E-D-E-flat (S in German), representing the thematic essence of his music.

The 1970s finally saw the composition of Denisov's central work: the opera L'Écume Des Jours [The Foam of the Days] based on the novel of the same name by Boris Vian. Denisov regarded this work, completed in 1981, as his most successful composition.

In 1980 followed the Requiem – another work with which the composer identified deeply and whose confessional character he paraphrased as follows: „When I wrote the Requiem, I thought about the cross that I carry in my life.“

The final phases in his production, lasting 16 years, is characterised by a synthesis of modern compositional techniques that enabled him to enjoy a new freedom in the invention and treatment of sound material. The final decade of creativity (1987-1996) resulted in large-scale works – alongside the completion of two operatic fragments, one must first mention the Symphony No. 1 for large orchestra (1987), followed by the two monumental oratorios for soloists, choir and orchestra: The History of the Life and Death of Our Lord Jesus Christ (1992) and Morgentraum [Morning Dream] (1993).

Edison Denisov was a corresponding member of the Bavarian Academy of the Fine Arts and of the Berlin Academy of the Arts. The French Ministry of Culture named him Officier des Arts et des Lettres in 1986, and in 1993 he was awarded the Grand Prix de la Ville de Paris.

AVANT-PROPOS

Edison Denisov (1929-1996) est l'une des figures majeures de la musique russe du XXe siècle. Après des études universitaires de mathématiques dans sa ville natale de Tomsk, en Sibérie, où tout lui présageait une brillante carrière de scientifique, il se lança sur une toute autre voie et entra en classe de composition au Conservatoire de Moscou. Les préceptes des sciences exactes exerçaient inlassablement leur influence sur l'art denisovien et il dira plus tard : «La musique est un art de la pensée logique».

Le jeune compositeur entra dans l'histoire de la musique avec une œuvre éclatante de tous points de vue, la cantate Le soleil des Incas. Si, en Russie, sa création provoqua un grand scandale, l'œuvre sera la première de son auteur à être jouée en Occident: d'abord à Darmstadt, en 1965, où elle est présentée comme le pionnier sériel de la musique soviétique. La même année, à Paris, Pierre Boulez présenta Le soleil des Incas au public du Domaine musical. Depuis, la destinée de Denisov connaît son ombre et sa lumière: pendant que sa Russie natale renie l'un de ses compositeurs les plus prometteurs, l'Europe amicale lance sa carrière internationale. Ainsi, déjà connu et reconnu en Occident, Denisov est persécuté dans son pays, longuement interdit à la publication de ses œuvres, à l'enregistrement de disques et aux concerts officiels, et ce, jusqu'au milieu des années 1980.

Figure de proue sur le navire de l'avant-garde soviétique des années 1960, il a pris sur lui les coups de vagues les plus violents du régime au pouvoir. Rebelle, incorruptible, consciencieux et persévérant, il restait fidèle à lui-même à travers tempêtes et épreuves. Une force rare, presque mystique, l'habitait et le différenciait de tant d'autres.

Souvent accusé dans son propre pays d'être un musicien trop «occidental», Denisov est pourtant profondément rattaché à la tradition russe et à sa culture populaire. Il l'est de prime abord par sa formation car il étudia la composition avec Vissarion Chébaline, qui fut l'élève de Nicolai Miaskovsky, lui-même disciple de Rimski-Korsakov et Glazounov. Jeune, Denisov voyagea dans le pays d'Altaï, en Sibérie, pour enregistrer les chants paysans authentiques. Nous en retrouvons l'empreinte partout dans son œuvre où les lignes mélodiques multiples viennent s'entremêler à la manière exacte de l'hétérophonie des chants russes. D'autres œuvres en témoignent de façon encore plus frappante telles que Pleurs qui restituent fidèlement l'ancien rituel funéraire ou Histoire de la vie et de la mort de notre Seigneur Jésus Christ, les premières Passions en langue russe, de l'histoire de la musique.

Leader incontestable, d'un charisme rare, Denisov a rassemblé autour de lui de nombreuses personnalités, contribué au rapprochement entre les musiciens de différents pays, et fut en ce sens «européen» avant l'heure. Fervent défenseur de la musique russe contemporaine, Denisov a toujours œuvré pour la promotion de celle-ci en Occident. Ses contacts professionnels et amicaux furent très nombreux : Henri Dutilleux, Yannis Xenakis, Pierre Boulez, Paul Méfano, Francis Miroglio, Nadia Boulanger, Claude Ballif, Vinco Globokar, Gilbert Amy, Jean-Claude Eloy, François Bernard Mâche en France, mais aussi Henri Pousseur, Luigi Nono, Luciano Berio, Luigi Dallapiccola, Luis de Pablo, Karlheinz Stockhausen, Helmut Lachenmann, George Cramb, Heinz Holliger, György Ligeti, Kazimierz Serocki, Zygmunt Krauze, sans nommer les interprètes et les organisateurs divers.

Le travail avec des interprètes russes et occidentaux, compagnons fidèles d'expériences et de novations téméraires, parmi lesquels le flûtiste Aurèle Nicolet, le hautboïste Heinz Holliger, le clarinettiste Edouard Brunner, le tromboniste Anatoli Skobelev, la violoncelliste Natalia Gutman, les saxophonistes Jean-Marie Londeix et Claude Delangle, permit à Denisov de réaliser des opus virtuoses, répondant aux dernières trouvailles de technique instrumentale.

Au-delà du compositeur, d'homme d'action et d'organisateur, l'étendue de sa personnalité comprend une grande part d'activité pédagogique. Denisov enseignait l'orchestration et la composition au Conservatoire de Moscou pendant presque quarante ans, entre 1959 et 1996, et est le seul de sa génération à former en Russie une véritable école de composition – rôle dans lequel il est comparable à Olivier Messiaen en France.

Le catalogue du Maître, fort de quelques 140 titres, contient une multitude de genres: de la musique instrumentale et vocale dont trois opéras, un ballet, deux symphonies pour grand orchestre, deux oratorios, un Requiem, quinze concertos pour instruments solistes, une quantité impressionnante d'œuvres de chambre. S'y rajoute les partitions pour plus de 30 spectacles dramatiques et plus de 60 musiques de films, dont la totalité ne figure pas dans la présente publication. On y remarque, à côté des œuvres à effectifs les plus ingénieux, de nombreux genres musicaux aux nominations «classiques» comme la symphonie, le concerto, la sonate et autres variations.

Son style, avant-gardiste, innovant et provocateur dans les années 1960, s'est ensuite apaisé, laissant place au lyrisme délicat et sensible, pour donner quelques éclats ultimes – expressionnistes, déchirants – dans les toutes dernières productions telles que la Seconde Symphonie de chambre ou encore la Symphonie N° 2 pour grand orchestre.

L'évolution stylistique de Denisov révèle un parcours stable, sans rebonds, ni écarts, mais sans cesse évolutif. Dans les années 1960, il s'est entièrement consacré à la musique de chambre, dans la recherche de l'authenticité. Il trouve son propre style, bien reconnaissable parmi tous, en début des années 1970, dont témoigne Penture pour grand orchestre (1970).

Le crédo créateur de Denisov réside dans l'une de ses idées fétiches: »La beauté est l'une des notions essentielles dans l'art.« Son esthétique se définit aussi par trois autres constantes: lumière, ombre et mystère. Nombre de fois ces trois notions reviennent dans ses propos comme dans la symbolique de ses œuvres. Au centre, le monogramme issu de son nom et prénom – E-D-Es (Mi-Ré-Mi bémol), représentant l'essence thématique de sa musique.

Au sein des années 1970, naît l'œuvre centrale de production denisovienne: l'opéra L'Écume des jours d'après le roman de Boris Vian. Terminé en 1981, Denisov le considérait comme le meilleur qu'il n'ait jamais composé.

En 1980, naît le Requiem – un autre opus identitaire mais aussi confessionnel du compositeur: »En composant le Requiem, – dira-t-il, – je songeais à la croix que je porte dans ma vie«.

La dernière période de sa production, longue de 16 ans (1980-1996), se caractérise par une synthèse des techniques modernes permettant d'atteindre une liberté dans la création et le maniement du matériau sonore. La dernière décennie créatrice, 1987-1996, voit naître les œuvres de grande envergure (en plus des deux opéras composés auparavant), à commencer par la Symphonie N° 1 pour grand orchestre (1987) suivie par deux oratorios monumentaux pour solistes, chœur et orchestre: Histoire de la vie et de la mort de notre Seigneur Jésus Christ (1992) et Morgentraum (1993).

Edison Denisov était membre correspondant des Académies des Beaux-Arts de Bavière et de Berlin. Le ministère français de la Culture l'a nommé en 1986 l'Officier des Arts et des Lettres et il a reçu, en 1993, le Grand Prix de la Ville de Paris.

VORWORT

Edison Denissow (1929-1996) ist einer der Hauptvertreter der russischen Musik des 20. Jahrhunderts. Nach einem Mathematikstudium in seiner Heimatstadt Tomsk (Sibirien), als alles auf eine glänzende Wissenschaftlerkarriere hindeutete, entschied er sich für einen gänzlich anderen Weg und trat in die Kompositionsklasse des Moskauer Konservatoriums ein. Die Prinzipien der exakten Wissenschaften blieben jedoch nicht ohne Einfluss auf Denissows Schaffen, und später erklärte er selbst einmal: „Musik ist eine Kunst des logischen Denkens“.

Der junge Komponist ging mit einem in jeder Hinsicht brillanten Werk in die Musikgeschichte ein: mit der Kantate Die Sonne der Inka. Während ihre Uraufführung in Russland einen großen Skandal auslöste, sollte es doch das erste Werk des Komponisten sein, das im Westen aufgeführt wurde: zunächst 1965 in Darmstadt, wo es als Pionierwerk des sowjetischen Serialismus präsentiert wurde. Im gleichen Jahr brachte Pierre Boulez Die Sonne der Inka in Paris zur Aufführung. Seitdem kannte Denissows musikalischer Weg Licht- und Schattenseiten: Während seine russische Heimat einen ihrer vielversprechendsten Komponisten verleugnete, begann in Europa seine internationale Karriere. So wurde Denissow, im Westen längst anerkannt, in der Sowjetunion bis Mitte der 1980er Jahre verfolgt, waren die Veröffentlichung sowie Schallplattenaufnahmen und offizielle Aufführungen seiner Werke verboten.

Als Gallionsfigur der sowjetischen Avantgarde der 1960er Jahre musste er heftigste Angriffe der Machthaber ertragen. Rebellisch, unbestechlich, gewissenhaft und ausdauernd blieb er sich durch alle Anfeindungen und Widrigkeiten hindurch treu. Er verfügte über eine seltene, beinahe mystische Kraft, die ihn von vielen anderen unterschied.

In seiner Heimat häufig als zu ‚westlich‘ angegriffen, ist Denissow dennoch tief mit der russischen Tradition und Volkskultur verbunden – zunächst einmal wegen seines Kompositionsunterrichts bei Wissarion Schebalin, einem Schüler von Nikolai Mjaskowski, der wiederum Schüler von Rimski-Korssakow und Glasunow war. Als junger Mann reiste Denissow ins sibirische Altai-Gebirge, um originale Bauerngesänge aufzunehmen. In seinem Werk finden sich deren Spuren überall dort, wo sich mehrere melodische Linien genau so miteinander verflechten wie in der Heterophonie der russischen Gesänge. Andere Werke Denissows bezeugen dies auf noch eindrücklichere Weise: etwa die Klagelieder, die das altrussische Bestattungsritual getreu wiedergeben, oder Die Historie vom Leben und Tod unseres Herrn Jesus Christus, die erste Passionsvertonung der Musikgeschichte in russischer Sprache.

Als unbestrittene Führungsperson mit seltenem Charisma hat Denissow zahlreiche Persönlichkeiten um sich versammelt und zur Annäherung von Musikern aus unterschiedlichen Ländern beigetragen. In diesem Sinne war er ein früher ‚Europäer‘. Denissow, ein glühender

Verteidiger der russischen zeitgenössischen Musik, ist zeitlebens für deren Verbreitung im Westen eingetreten. Er pflegte zahlreiche professionelle und persönliche Kontakte – u.a. zu Henri Dutilleux, Iannis Xenakis, Pierre Boulez, Paul Méfano, Francis Miroglio, Nadia Boulanger, Claude Ballif, Vinko Globokar, Gilbert Amy, Jean-Claude Eloy, François Bernard Mâche in Frankreich, aber auch zu Henri Pousseur, Luigi Nono, Luciano Berio, Luigi Dallapiccola, Luis de Pablo, Karlheinz Stockhausen, Helmut Lachenmann, George Crumb, Heinz Holliger, György Ligeti, Kazimierz Serocki, Zygmunt Krauze – wenn man einmal von Interpreten und diversen Veranstaltern absieht.

Die Zusammenarbeit mit russischen und westlichen Musikern, treue Wegbegleiter bei der Suche nach gewagten Neuerungen – darunter der Flötist Aurèle Nicolet, der Oboist Heinz Holliger, der Klarinettist Eduard Brunner, der Posaunist Anatoli Skobelew, die Cellistin Natalia Gutman, die Saxophonisten Jean-Marie Londeix und Claude Delangle – erlaubte es Denisow, virtuose Werke zu schaffen, welche die neuesten Instrumentaltechniken beinhalteten.

Jenseits seiner kompositorischen Tätigkeit widmete er sich vielfältigen pädagogischen Aktivitäten. Denisow lehrte beinahe 40 Jahre lang (1959-1996) Orchestration und Komposition am Moskauer Konservatorium, und er ist der einzige Komponist seiner Generation, der in Russland eine eigene Kompositionsschule begründete – darin mit Olivier Messiaen in Frankreich vergleichbar.

Das Werk des Meisters, das mehr als 140 Kompositionen zählt, umfasst eine Vielzahl von Gattungen: Instrumentalwerke und Vokalkompositionen, darunter drei Opern, ein Ballett, zwei Sinfonien für großes Orchester, zwei Oratorien, ein Requiem, 15 Solokonzerte und eine eindrucksvolle Anzahl von Kammermusikwerken. Dazu kommen mehr als 30 Bühnenmusiken und über 60 Filmmusiken, deren Gesamtheit im vorliegenden Katalog nicht dargestellt werden kann. Bemerkenswert ist dabei das Nebeneinander von äußerst raffiniert instrumentierten Werken und ‚klassisch‘ konzipierten Kompositionen wie Sinfonien, Konzerte, Sonaten u.a.

Sein avantgardistischer Stil, in den 1960er Jahren innovativ und provozierend, wurde nach und nach gemäßigter und machte einem feinen, empfindsamen Lyrismus Platz, um wiederum in seinen letzten Werken – der Zweiten Kammer-sinfonie und der Sinfonie Nr. 2 für großes Orchester – in einen von erschütternd expressionistischen Ausbrüchen geprägten Spätstil überzugehen.

Denisows stilistische Entwicklung weist eine große Stetigkeit auf, ohne Unterbrechungen oder Umwege, immer jedoch evolutionär. In den 1960er Jahren widmete er sich auf der Suche nach Authentizität ganz der Kammermusik. Anfang der 1970er Jahre fand er mit Peinture für großes Orchester seinen eigenen, unverkennbaren Stil.

Denissows schöpferisches Credo findet sich in einem seiner Lieblingsgedanken: „Schönheit ist einer der wesentlichen Begriffe in der Kunst“. Seine Ästhetik wird daneben von drei weiteren Konstanten definiert: Licht, Schatten und Mysterium. Immer wieder finden sich diese drei Begriffe sowohl in seinen Äußerungen als auch in der Symbolik seiner Werke. Im Zentrum steht dabei das Monogramm, das auf seinen Vor- und Nachnamen zurückgeht – E-D-Es, das die thematische Essenz seiner Musik darstellt.

In den 1970er Jahren entsteht schließlich Denissows Zentralwerk: die Oper Der Scham der Tage nach dem gleichnamigen Roman von Boris Vian. Das 1981 abgeschlossene Werk betrachtete Denissow als seine gelungenste Komposition.

1980 folgt das Requiem – ein weiteres Werk, mit dem sich der Komponist zutiefst identifiziert und dessen Bekenntnischarakter der Komponist folgendermaßen umschreibt: „Als ich das Requiem schrieb, dachte ich an das Kreuz, das ich in meinem Leben trage“.

Die 16 Jahre umfassende, letzte Phase seines Schaffens ist von einer Synthese moderner Kompositionstechniken gekennzeichnet, die ihm eine neue Freiheit bei der Erfindung und Behandlung des Klangmaterials ermöglicht. Das letzte Schaffensjahrzehnt (1987-1996) bringt großkonzipierte Werke hervor – neben der Vollendung von zwei Opernfragmenten ist zunächst die Sinfonie Nr. 1 für großes Orchester (1987) zu nennen, der zwei monumentale Oratorien für Soli, Chor und Orchester folgen: Die Historie vom Leben und Tod unseres Herrn Jesus Christus (1992) und Morgentraum (1993).

Edison Denissow war korrespondierendes Mitglied der Bayerischen Akademie der Schönen Künste sowie der Berliner Akademie der Künste. Das französische Kulturministerium ernannte ihn im Jahr 1986 zum Officier des Arts et des Lettres, und 1993 wurde ihm der Grand Prix de la Ville de Paris verliehen.
